Welcome to Math @ Iowa!

A successful academic program represents a special combination of creativity and analytic rigor that is respected worldwide. Those of our students and faculty who “do” mathematics are constantly excited by the combination of internal beauty and powerful applicability that motivate our studies. It’s simply great stuff --- challenging, fun, and vitally important to society.

Mathematics is a basic tool for understanding the world, and it is a crucial requirement for many careers in science, engineering, business and other professions. It is also a living, dynamic field of research.

Whether you’re contemplating a degree in mathematics, taking math courses toward fulfilling another degree, or just spending a summer session with us, we’re glad you’re considering an educational experience with the University of Iowa and the Department of Mathematics!
